A Steady Anchor for the CAV

Wayne Wray is this year's recipient of the Jane Harriman Hall Award for Outstanding Service to the Classical Association of Virginia. Wayne has been a career-long member of the CAV, and he served as Treasurer from 1982-1986. Through his efforts two key CAV awards were created: the Lurlene Todd Excellence in Teaching award and the Wayne W. Wray CAV Student Scholarship award. Both of these awards would not exist without his impetus and financial support.

His nominator eloquently summarized the essence of his contributions to the CAV over the years. "CAV thrives not only because of the associations that are made between public and private schools with academia, but also because of the bonds that Latin teachers forge with their own students. Wayne Wray is most deserving of the Jane Harriman Hall Award because he has placed that bond between teacher and student amid the honors that the CAV bestows each year."

In his acceptance speech Wayne took his audience down the CAV memory lane with many a chuckle from the audience. In his own words, "I am humbled and honored to be the 2016 recipient of the award. CAV has been a steady anchor in my academic journey, and I hope young teachers today will derive from CAV the rewards which I have. An earthquake, celebrations, the joys of having students enter CAV contests and win awards, the benefit of many scholars' classical research, and great camaraderie: what more can one seek?"

Fred Franko thanks Patrick Bradley for his years of service running the CAV Classical Essay Contest. Patrick announced his retirement as chair of the contest at the Spring meeting. Patrick Bradley has served as chair of this contest for 14 years.

CAV PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Sincere thanks.

At the end of the pleasant spring meeting at Hollins, I quipped that my two years as princeps of CAV perhaps resembled a Saturnalian or Neronian interlude, with any semblance of competency coming from Liane Houghtalin as Burrus and the chorus of the Executive Committee as Seneca. Much truth to that remark, for the sustained and sustaining success of CAV depends upon the gracious efficiency of dozens of people who devote a few hours of each year to the greater good. Similarly, Wayne Wray's thoughtful reminiscences of a life in classics and CAV underscored both our invisible links to our maiores and our own responsibility in ensuring that CAV fosters the next generation of classicists.

Tradition fades without reception. Thankfully, we see many young minds eager to receive what we, as an organization with significant powers of outreach, transmit. For example, I marvel at the thousands of students who have experienced the Latin Tournament. That tournament only thrives through the willingness of students and teachers to participate and the generosity of those who process the exams. Kevin Jefferson directs the tournament, but we also must thank Kathy Smerke as registrar, Elizabeth Campbell for coordinating the awards, test writers (David Yates, Andrea Weiskopf, Paul Perrot, Kelly Arble, Ariel Baska), proofreaders (Sherry Jankowski, John Siman, Harriet Livesay, Patty Lister, Nadia Ghosheh, Alana Lukes), Susan Schearer as archivist, Emily Lewis for the scantron machine, Jon Mikalson's graduate and undergraduate students who spent a Saturday morning grading the translations, and two impromptu helpers (since Elizabeth could not attend, Patty Lister brought the certificates and awards down I-81, and Adriene Cunningham took them back up to Elizabeth for mailing). The Latin Tournament provides only one example; we could look to John Miller's direction of the Arthur F. Stocker Latin Essay Contest, or Patrick Bradley's 14 years directing the Classical Essay Contest, plus the litany of readers who offer an hour or two to read those submissions. Healthy numbers in CAV contests indicate that reception is not a problem.

Reception fails without tradition. We cannot take for granted that others will always assume a burden or celebrate CAV. I am dismayed that twice in the last three years we have not given the Lurlene W. Todd Teacher of the Year Award for lack of a nomination. As some of the older generation has retired, attendance from faculty at some colleges has dwindled, which constitutes not a passive neglect but an active dismemberment of the classics community in the Commonwealth. When our colleagues fail to introduce their students to CAV, they deny them access to the traditions such as those recalled by Wayne Wray. Those of us who do participate in CAV regularly might invite prodigal colleagues to return to the fold, be it volunteering to read a few essays or attending a meeting and bringing a few students.

Qualis artifex pereo. With that, I leave it to the competent, Vespasianic guidance of Mark Keith.

ex animo,
Fred Franko

Animus Praeteritorum meminit

Wayne Wray's acceptance speech for the Jane Harriman Hall Award

1st Experience: Taking the CAV Tournament tests as a high school student in '59,'60, '61

1st Meeting: Fall of 1963 in downtown Richmond. I was a student at the University of Richmond and my high school Latin teacher, Lurlene Todd, had come from Roanoke to the meeting, and, of course, I wanted to see her. I introduced her to Talbot Selby, my Latin and Greek professor.

1st Membership: My first year of teaching, 1965, at the Collegiate Schools in Richmond. My students were entered in the Tournament that first year and then almost all other years of my teaching.

I always looked forward to both the fall and spring meetings. The camaraderie and good will among the members was special. I traversed the state attending meetings: Host schools included William and Mary, Hampden-Sydney, Sweet Briar, University of Richmond, Mary Washington, Midlothian High School, University of Virginia (multiple times), Hollins, Virginia Military Institute, Washington and Lee, and Emory and Henry in the far Southwestern part of the state.

At one meeting, I believe at Mary Washington in Fredericksburg (1970s), I was in attendance as was my high school teacher, and her high school teacher. Keep in mind that my high school teacher had graduated high school in the early 1930s.

We once met at a winery, I believe somewhere near Hampden Sydney. We ate boxed lunches near the vineyard. The name of the winery has escaped me. Surely I remember Professor John Sawhill of Madison College, the Judge of the Latin Tournament, who sent results in his own handwriting with scores (of the 1966 such as 92.77, 83.13, 79.19, and 90.43. No scores below 75 were given. I am not sure how the judge arrived at these scores.

Wyatt Jorner of Classical Cottage School is the recipient of Wayne Wray Student Scholarship Award. Wyatt is flanked by Fred Franko on the left and Wayne Wray on the right. Wyatt will attend UVA in the Fall where he will pursue majors in Classics and Computer Science.. He was nominated by his teacher Susan Schearer.

One year an earthquake (not the big one in August of 2011) rumbled beneath the floor as we were meeting at the University of Virginia. As I recall our local Fredericksburg newspaper reported something less than 2.0 on the Richter Scale. Were those ancient deities up to some of their shenanigans?

And we were entertained by one presenter (here at Hollins) who related her experience climbing Mount Olympus complete with photos.

Who can forget our 75th anniversary celebration and the banquet held in the at UVA, Nov. 8, 1986? The anniversary address was delivered by Lynne Cheney, Chairperson of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Letters of congratulations were sent by President Ronald Reagan and others including William Bennett, Secretary, Dept. Of Education. I quote one sentence from President Reagan's letter,

"Very fittingly, you are celebrating this anniversary in the Rotunda of the University of Virginia, classical in inspiration and designed by Thomas Jefferson, a great American, who by his superb achievements in so many fields demonstrated what a classical education can achieve."

And then there was the Centennial Celebration at the Omni Hotel in Richmond. Oct. 30, 2010. Letters of Congratulations were sent by President Barack Obama and Senator Mark Warner. We dined on Chicken Marsala and Italian Tiramisu Cake.

Throughout the years I have written Tournament exams, proofread exams, and judged essays. I served as treasurer while Christine Sleeper and Wayne Tucker served as presidents. I sponsor two awards annually.

My sincere appreciation to Jane Hall, a powerhouse known not only locally but nationally for her contributions to our discipline, and to CAV for this award. I always enjoyed seeing Jane at our meetings, and she and I once discussed my joining her in Fairfax County to teach Latin. I am humbled and honored to be the 2016 recipient of the award.

CAV has been a steady anchor in my academic journey, and I hope young teachers today will derive from CAV the rewards which I have. An earthquake, celebrations, the joys of having students enter CAV contests and win awards, the benefit of many scholars' classical research, and great camaraderie: what more can one seek?

For me, indeed, it has been a great journey!

Deanna Solomon recipient of Angela Lloyd Book Award.

Deanna Solomon of Classical Cottage School is this year's recipient of the Angela Lloyd Book Award. She has taught Latin for 12 years. Her nominator eloquently spoke about her inspiring teaching. "Magistra Solomon is a favorite among our students, who wait in hopeful anticipation each spring that she will be assigned the teacher for their Latin level. Deanna's enthusiasm makes Latin not only exciting for her students, but it gives them the motivation they need to dig in when the lessons become tough. She uses song, hand motions, and manipulatives to make Latin come alive."

Schools send us listings of their positions, and we send these listings by e-mail to the teachers who have registered with the CAV Placement Service. We provide continuous updates from March until September. If you know of a position available, have the school principal or personnel office get in touch with the service. If you wish a position, send in your name and e-mail address. We ask schools and teachers to contact Jon D. Mikalson by e-mail at: jdm9x@virginia.edu.
