WHAT A GREAT SPRING MEETING!

The talks that Bartolo Natoli and Erika Zimmermann Damer gave at the spring meeting reminded us of the richness and variety of the materials that we teach.

Ancient Women Writers of Greece and Rome, just out from Routledge, gives Latin and Greek teachers opportunities to expand the worlds that we show our students, to show them how rich are the worlds that the study of ancient language can open to them. The talks showed how much we can learn from texts that we find in sources that haven't always been part of the canon and that might appear in places that literature teachers have not traditionally read—like inscriptions in ancient Egyptian tourist destinations.

We're also in an era when we're benefitting from new sorts of collaborations that break down old hierarchies that are also making important texts more accessible to all. Case in point: Isotta Nogarola's Defense of Eve in a new edition with vocabulary and commentary written by Thomas G. Hendrickson and his students at Stanford Online School. It's available from Pixelia Publishing, free in PDF, and features a pivotal 15th-century text in Latin by a woman addressing directly issues of gender. The book demonstrates for us all the benefits of pedagogies that treat students as emerging peers.

These new models of scholarship and learning, especially as they resurface women authors, herald a dynamic and healthy time in our field.

The CAV is also proud to announce the winners of the yearly awards: the Wayne W. Wray scholarship was presented to Nicole Quiram; the Jim Bigger scholarship was presented to Ryan Dwyer; the Lurlene Todd Teacher of the Year Award was presented to Dr. Melanie Stowell; the Angela Lloyd Book Award was presented to Nadia Ghosheh. Congratulations to all the honorees!

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Χαίρετε!

I write to you after the delightful experience of getting together again with CAV colleagues at our spring meeting—in person—at Randolph-Macon College. Many thanks to our hosts, especially Bart Natoli and Thomas Rose, for the gracious welcome and accommodations, and to Patty Lister, for presiding over a lively and inspiring meeting.

The inspiration came in part from the prize-winners and awardees. It felt wonderful to name and congratulate the teachers and students who excelled even in the stressed circumstances of the last year. We were also inspired to action by the talks of our colleagues in the field: Ann Maclean made us all itch to swoop our students to Italy; Bart Natoli and Erika Damer made us all excited to dig into texts we had overlooked.

Perhaps most of all, being together again inspired hope and anticipation of many good things.

Let's do it again: September 10, at the University of Virginia. Program pending.

In the meantime, I hope to see many of you at the ACL Institute, where I know CAV members will inspire others.

Valete,
Amy

Professional Development Grant

Many thanks to those who made the silent auction at the spring CAV meeting a success! $269 towards the professional development fund was earned. Very little was expended over the pandemic so we're in good shape to award one or more individuals with a grant for professional development of any sort that will lead to enhancement as a teacher of the classics.

To apply for a grant, just fill out the form at bit.ly/CAVGrant by August 31. If you have any questions, you can reach out to Amy Petersen at MagistraP@gmail.com.

CLASSICAL ESSAY CONTEST REPORT

While the number of essays received for the CAV Classical Essay Contest was very low this year, many of the essays were inventive and of high quality. All 17 essays in 5 categories came from the Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology from the classrooms of teachers Patty Lister and Christine Conklin. I would like to thank the readers who gave their time to read essays in a few of the categories: Fred Franko of Hollins University, Cygnet Steer of Virginia Tech, and Stevie Woods of Roanoke Public Schools. The results of the contest are listed below.

This precipitous decrease in essay submissions is undoubtedly due to the disruption of the Covid pandemic in our classrooms. However, I welcome any and all feedback on continuing this contest in the future, especially concerning the topics of the essays for different levels and the ease (or lack thereof) of the submission process using Google forms.

Respectfully submitted,
Christina A. Salowey

CAV Teacher Placement Service

Do you know of a Latin teaching position in your area? Or are you currently searching for a Latin teaching position? The CAV Placement Service offers a free program to bring together teachers seeking Latin positions in Virginia and schools in Virginia which are seeking Latin teachers. Schools send us listings of their positions, and we send these listings by e-mail to the teachers who have registered with the CAV Placement Service. We provide continuous updates from March until September. If you know of a position available, have the school principal or personnel office get in touch with the service. If you wish a position, send in your name and e-mail address. We ask schools and teachers to contact Jon D. Mikalson by e-mail at: jdm9x@virginia.edu. There are no charges for these services!

Classroom Materials Need a New Home!

In making room for novellas, I am clearing out materials from a previous teacher. If you're interested in any of the following, please contact me and I will ship to you for postage costs only.

The Romans Speak for Themselves, Book I - 26 copies

Richie's Fabulae Graecae - 32 copies

Ten Classical Myths Adapted for First and Second Year Latin Students (ACL Bound Publication) - 16 copies
